DETAILED ACTION

Double Patenting

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and, In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 1-3, 6-8 and 10-16 are rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-16 of U.S. Patent No. 6,371,463. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the claims in the instant case are broader than the ones in the earlier patent. In regard to claim 1, Applicant has replaced the explicit limitation of pre-strains, reverse bending and restraining the pseudoelastic element against recovery of the original shape with a broader limitation of "a pseudoelastic element shaped to undergo concentrated deformation upon loading."

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 4,5 and 9 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Art Unit: 2834

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: In regard to the double patenting rejection, the prior art of record does not disclose or teach a pseudoelastic spring shaped to undergo concentrated deformations under loading and having force levels varying by less than 30% over more than 40% of maximum deflection capacity upon loading. There are numerous examples of other types of prior art springs which appear to have the force level/deflection capacity ratio as claimed. Koenitzer (cited by Applicant) is one. Besides his own invention, Koenitzer teaches helical springs, a clock type wound spring and spring combinations in column 1 line 33 to column 2 line 5. What Koenitzer does not teach is a spring shaped to undergo concentrated deformations under loading having the force level/deflection capacity ratio as claimed. Coil springs undergo deformation over the entire length of the coil. Leaf springs undergo deformation over the length of the spring. Yaeger discloses a binder clamp 14 in his figures 1, 2 and 4. This type of spring device will have concentrated deformations upon loading at the two bends of the spring. However, combining Yaeger with Koenitzer and also with a reference teaching using pseudoelastic springs would not have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art.

In regard to claims 4 and 5, patent '463 does not claim that either torsional or flexural deformations predominate. In regard to claim 9, patent '463 does not claim stiffening the pseudoelastic element outside regions where concentrated deformations occur.
